MEMBER SPOTLIGHT

This month's member spotlight features South Central Community Foundation (SCCF). They are one of our newest Chamber member organizations. Keep reading to find out more about how the organization serves Barber, Comanche, Kingman, Kiowa, Pratt, Rice, and Stafford county.

What is SCCF?

"South Central Community Foundation (SCCF) is a regional nonprofit that helps administer family funds, grants, and scholarships. SCCF also facilitates a youth philanthropy group for High School students in the seven counties that they serve."

Do you have a target market?

"Our niche is that we are a nonprofit that can help any aspect of the community."

How did the idea of SCCF come to be?

"The SCCF founders saw a need for group philanthropy and how it could make an impact for our rural communities."

Since starting SCCF, what has been the biggest win and challenge?

"Our biggest win is that we have granted out over 12 million dollars due to the generosity of the communities we serve. Our biggest challenge is that we are the region's best kept secret as not everyone is aware of all the services we provide."

What makes you stand out from other nonprofits?

"Community members can always donate to a nonprofit directly, but giving through SCCF allows us to impact those nonprofits while also growing our grant and scholarship programs."

What are your personal goals for SCCF?

"To continue meeting the individual needs for the seven counties that we serve and raising financial resources to best support those needs."
